

35 BC

Sextus Pompeius, after the battle of Naulochus, fled to Asia, but was put to death at Miletus by Marcus Titius (35 BC) who became proconsul of the province.

35BC

Herod the Great had a vestibule III, his last serious rival for the crown of Judaea drowned in the great swimming pool of the palace of Alexander Jannaeus, the builder, on the north bank of the Wadi Qilt - JERICHO

35BC

After Antony lost $\frac{1}{2}$ his Army to the Parthians, Octavia announced she was coming to bring supplies. Antony told her to forget it and stay home.

Octavian suggested to Romans that Antony was a deserter.

In a public ceremony in Alexandria Antony had his children sitting on thrones & proclaimed Cleopatra "Queen of Kings" and Caesarion "King of Kings". He announced that

Cooper, not O'Brien, was Julius Caesar's real man and the real hero of Rome.
Then he derived O'Brien.